Kat Evasco is a writer, stand up comedian, performance artist, and educator. Evasco is best known for her national touring autobiographical one-woman show, Mommy Queerest, co-written and directed by John Caldon. Evasco studied acting and personal narrative storytelling with Anna Deveare Smith and playwriting with Cherríe Moraga. She has performed at venues including the Haha Cafe, San Jose Improv, the Purple Onion, Napa Valley

Opera House, Logan Center for the Arts, Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts, and FringeArts. Evasco's current projects include the developing and directing Prieto, a solo show written and performed by nationally acclaimed poet and undocumented activist, Yosimar Reyes, in collaboration with Pulitzer Prize winning journalist, Jose Antonio Vargas.

She is also directing a new solo show by poet and spoken word artist, Jason Bayani, called Locus of Control.
