

MELISSA LEE

Writer

Melissa was born and raised in the South. More specifically, the hills of Tennessee. Melissa studied broadcast journalism first at the University of Georgia, before finishing her degree at Middle Tennessee State University, located just outside Nashville. She also studied at the UCLA Extension Writer's Program. After arriving in LA, she worked a number of jobs ranging from publicist to entertainment journalist before moving into documentary producing. Currently she is involved in three productions, one that is finished and recently screened at the United Nations, titled The Nuns, the Priests and the Bombs. She is currently working on her pet project, which is decidedly southern, and deliciously scandalous.

